Course Description:

This course will teach you to be comfortable with the essential aspects of performing economic analysis on real-world data. In doing so, we will spend a substantial amount of time using STATA, a statistical computer software package designed especially for available through a link posted on the Canvas website. I recommend Stata/IC. Prices are $45 for a six-month license, $89 for a one-year license, and $198 things you have done in class but with your own data and focusing on a topic that is of interest to you. Some course time will be spent teaching you how to download and prepare U.S. Census data for analysis, and many students will formulate a research question that can be investigated using Census data. Other Course Information and Policies

Attendance Requirement: Attendance for this course is required. Classes are interactive, and you will get the most out of this course by attending each class meeting. However, I understand that occasionally circumstances necessitate missing a lecture. Thus, students will be allowed up to six absences without penalty. Students with more than 6 absences (three weeks of class) throughout the semester will fail the course. Note that there are no additional absences available for standard “excused” reasons (illness, family emergency, transportation problem, etc.). I will take attendance prior to the start of every class period.

Waitlist/Administrative Drops: University policy allows instructors to drop students who do not attend class regularly during the first two weeks. Further, instructors are allowed to determine the amount of nonattendance that will result in an administrative drop.² In this course, I will enforce the following policy: If you fail to attend any class meeting in the first two weeks, I will have you dropped from the course as soon as possible. Note that this policy may vary from other instructors’ policies, even compared to other classes in the Economics department. If you are administratively dropped during the add window, you may attempt to re-register, but you will be subject to standard waitlist procedures.

Late Assignments/ Missed Examinations Policy: Exams will be submitted through the Canvas website, and there will be incentives to turn them in on time (along with disincentives for working beyond the end of the test period). NOTE: You must attend class on the day of the exam to receive credit. Following a ten-minute grace period, I will apply at least a 15 percent penalty to final projects turned in after the deadline, with greater penalties likely for delays of more than 24 hours.

If you miss an exam you will receive no credit unless you provide documentation of a medical or family emergency. In the case of a legitimate emergency, I will treat the score on the missed exam as a missing data point when calculating final grades. In other words, I will give no weight to the exam in the calculation of the final grade, and other assignments will be reweighted proportionately

Immigration status: the webpage www.colorado.edu/undocumented contains information regarding campus resources available for students and employees with DACA status. You should also feel free to discuss your status and any related issues with Prof. Cadena. I will do my best to provide appropriate accommodation or connect you to the most appropriate on-campus resources.

The Office of Victim Assistance (OVA) provides free and confidential information, consultation, support, advocacy and short term counseling services to University of Colorado Boulder students, graduate students, faculty and staff who have experienced a traumatic, disturbing or life disruptive event. OVA is not a part of the police department or the Office of Institutional Equity and Compliance, and is confidential resource for students, staff and faculty. Their webpage is www.colorado.edu/ova and they can be reached by phone at 303.492.8855 and by e-mail at assist@colorado.edu

Tutoring: The Economics Department provides a free drop-in tutorial office, which provides help with all core courses in the major and occasionally on other courses offered by the department. More information at:

How Can I Do Better?

Every semester, I have some students who come to office hours partway through the semester who have performed poorly on one or both midterms and are wondering what they can do differently. I have noticed some differences in the habits of the strongest students compared to those of the students who find themselves in this situation. As a service to you, I am giving everyone access to the advice I expect to give later in the semester – all from day one.

- 1) Mentally engage in class. There is a big difference between passively typing in commands and mentally engaging in class to really understand the material. Ask yourself: Can I answer the questions the professor is asking? Do I understand why he is asking them? Am I thinking about what is being done and why, or am I simply writing things down so I can memorize them later?
- 2) Review class material before the next class. The material in this course is almost entirely cumulative, and your experience in a class meeting will be much more productive if you have already mastered the material from the previous lectures. Review previous material so that it is fresh in your mind for the next lecture. I'll always open the floor for questions about earlier material at the start of class. You should take me up on

Please know that faculty and instructors have a responsibility to inform OIEC when made aware of incidents of sexual misconduct, discrimination, harassment and/or related retaliation, to ensure that individuals impacted receive information about options for reporting and support resources.

Religious Observances

Campus policy regarding religious observances requires that faculty make every effort to deal reasonably and fairly with all students who, because of religious obligations, have conflicts with scheduled exams, assignments or required attendance. In this course, please inform me no later than two weeks prior to any conflict you foresee, sooner if possible, so that we may find an alternative arrangement for you to complete the requirements of the course. See campus policy regarding religious observances for full details.
